Artificial intelligence

Many businesses are using artificial intelligence (AI) these days. The most recent IT outsourcing strategies view AI's effect as a competitor. We have AI capabilities such Digital Twin and State Leadership and Managerial AI Technology (SLAIMT) to support your business or idea in many ways.

Network Security

Cybersecurity is currently an issue for every company. In response, we at AIDEC Digital provide services that locate and address any security concerns your business.

Network Configuration

Network configuration is the process of allocating network configurations, policies, flows, and controls. This is an essential task since it increases system security and stability while also increasing network traffic within your company.

Cloud services

Anything offered by a third party over the internet, such as platforms, infrastructure, or software, is considered a cloud service. Only a computer, operating system, and internet or virtual private network connectivity are required to access this (VPN). We can assist you to migrate seamlessly to the cloud according to plan and budget.

Data Backup

Services for data backup provide your business with the security you require to safeguard all your information. Third-party data backup and recovery services are offered by independent software and IT service companies.

Content Marketing

Digital Marketing

Search Engine Optimization

Email Marketing

IT service providers may also assist in creating an email marketing plan to reach out to both present and potential clients. Process-smoothing IT and AI-powered tools make this possible.

Web Design

You can get assistance from us on web design, web applications, mobile apps and software with several design jobs that strengthen your website. These IT services can create multimedia presentations to differentiate your company from the competition.

Animation

You can more successfully implement your creative notions with top-notch IT services. Modern IT infrastructure, especially automation, has a significant positive impact on animation operations by increasing the effectiveness of systems and applications. Animation outsourcing is the practice of contracting out a portion of your animation job to us for greater output.

Graphic Design

IT support services

Nobody else but IT support professionals can fix problems caused by equipment failure or malfunction. AIDEC Digital offers maintenance, renovation, alterations, and restoration to make sure your company's infrastructures function properly.

Social media consulting

Social media consultancy is a popular choice for businesses looking for robust IT support. The client's social media accounts and sources are under the control of the IT service provider.

The goal of social media consultancy is to attract as many visitors as possible and turn them into loyal consumers.

IT advisory

IT consultancy helps customers incorporate their IT strategies into their overarching business objectives or processes. IT activities for a client are supported by services like architectural and strategic guidance as well as operational and execution planning.

Data Storage

Businesses can host their data on their own servers with the aid of IT service providers. They create plans and methods for making client data access as simple as feasible while storing client data.

Software Support

Companies that rely on software programs significantly might gain a lot from professional software support from IT service providers. They can assist with installation, upkeep, troubleshooting, and repairs in addition to installation and maintenance.

Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP)

VoIP is a technical term for voice over internet protocol. It is a worthwhile investment because VoIP is significantly less expensive than conventional phone lines, especially for call centers.

Data Visualization

The practice of visually expressing numerical or numerically similar information is known as data visualization. IT service providers employ technologies that make it easier for them to see trends in the data using charts, maps, and graphs.

Data analysis

Companies can utilize data analysis to gather, organize, and comprehend information pertaining to various organizational sectors. Also, this approach offers useful data while cutting the price of creating analytics programs.

Data Gathering and Analysis

Data gathering is essential for making business decisions. After finished, you will be able to make sense of a sizable amount of unstructured data.

Businesses may employ data analytics to transform unstructured corporate data into insightful information for making strategic decisions.

Services for business processes

Certain business operations that are not among an organization's core competencies are referred to as business process services. Tasks can be delegated to other service providers who have the necessary expertise. Businesses now have more flexibility in how they can manage their finances and operations as a result.

APIs

Application programming interfaces (APIs) (application services) give software instructions on how to interface with a system in order to retrieve and modify data that is present there. Service APIs can be used to solve performance problems in third-party applications and make third-party application integration simpler.

Synchronization of data

Data synchronization, which is the process of synchronizing data across multiple devices and automatically updating changes across them, maintains consistency.

AIDEC Digital have simple solutions for minimizing time-consuming processes, resulting in data synchronization throughout systems.

End-user device management

End-user device management is a common practice among businesses. We can develop an end-user device management strategy that incorporates full endpoint services to assist your firm in succeeding.

Knowledge management

Organizations put knowledge and information to a variety of uses. This approach is referred to as knowledge management. We use multidisciplinary strategy approach by utilizing all pertinent information to accomplish corporate objectives.

Data entry

Data entry specialists enter information into a database or documentation platform using computers and data processing tools. A data entry job may need transcription of audio or phone recordings among its obligations. We have highly skilled and professional data entrants who are ready to fix your data entry worries within specified timeframe and budget.

Technology training

Technology and software are always evolving. By instructing your team on how to use the most recent iterations of these technologies, you may increase their productivity.

For business teams, many IT services offer training on how to exploit technology's resources and capabilities. Your company's employees can be trained by our IT team on how to use various software tools and programs to resolve these problems.

Internet-based communications

Internet-based communications are set up by the information technology (IT) service providers for your business. They also maintain the software and hardware for the programs. Depending on the needs of your business need, we can design your own communications campaign.